Woodland Police Department

Joe Moreno

Joe Moreno grew up in the small town of Yolo, just north of Woodland, where he attended grammar school. Subsequently, he graduated from Woodland High School and furthered his studies. He earned advanced degrees from International (Brazil) and California universities. Joe became an educator and taught Spanish Literature and Culture and ESL at Davis Senior High School for thirty-one years. Joe also taught part time at Woodland Community College for fifteen years.

Joe is now retired from academia, but is interested and concerned in the human condition in our city where he has lived for thirty-six years. His aim and focus is in our youth, as well as, farm workers and migrant families. To Joe, Woodland is a beautiful and diverse community with deep history. His profound desire is for all stakeholders to have a sense of communication, trust, and understanding. Joe and his wife, Dianna, have three daughters and three grandchildren. Joe is looking forward to establishing a repertory between law enforcement and our city.
